Gathering of Castes (India) The "Gathering of the Tenth or Tenth Day" (also Ganesh Chaturthi) is a Hindu festival of the birth of the Hindu god Ganesh. In the general context of the celebration of Ganesh's birthday, it is considered to be a harvest festival, or the final offering of the harvest season. Celebration The festival is celebrated from August to October in the Indian subcontinent. Various Hindu sects and other creeds around India celebrate this festival. The festival is more important in Maharashtra, Gujarat, Madhya Pradesh and Uttar Pradesh. On the tenth day of the month of Chaitra or the month of Marathi (or Shravana or the Tamil month), Hindu villagers and farmers gather at the banks of a river or a tank to celebrate the festival of Ganesh. Since the water of these tanks and rivers are very clean, it is believed that on the tenth day of Chaitra, Lord Ganesh's footprints appear on those bodies of water. People believe that these animals can be brought back to the village only after certain rituals are performed by the villagers. Once the villagers think that the animals belong to Lord Ganesh, they bring them back to the village, which completes the cycle of the festival. During this festival, the villagers bring "kaal", a sort of roti made of wheat flour and lentils, to the temple or river bank. The people worship the temple of Lord Ganesh and the river itself with the "kaal". The "kaal" is offered to the river or the temple. Some villagers collect the lotus flowers from the temple and give them to the river. While the "kaal" is being prepared, the people take out the idols of Lord Ganesh from their houses and from the temples, and bring them to the river or the temple. The people then pray to the Lord, saying "Sh

To initiate the process, select "Automatic clicker" from Rapid Auto Clicker Software Start Menu. Speed of double-clicking or click The application offers several options where you can adjust the speed of the mouse clicks. However, changing the default settings is not an easy task. Instead, use Rapid Auto Clicker Software to easily set the desired number of seconds that your PC can stay idle before launching a click. Once that number is set, the application will automatically double click or click for an amount of time defined by you, so you might need to restart your PC for this to work. Timer The interface allows you to define a number of seconds before the automatic clicker starts functioning. By setting the timer to less than zero, you can control the length of time your PC can stay idle before it starts auto-clicking, as well as interrupting the setting by holding down the spacebar. Click speed The minimum and maximum numbers of seconds between clicks can be set by specifying the amount of time that you want to wait after each mouse click. For instance, if you want to wait 15 seconds before launching your computer's click function, you should set the maximum time at 60 seconds, leaving the minimum time at 0 seconds. In conclusion Rapid Auto Clicker Software is a lightweight tool that can help you set your mouse to automatically double click or click at given intervals. However, you should be aware that the process can interrupt your PC while it is idle, so you might need to restart your system.
